After moderated period, construction ramps up in West Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale while fundamentals carry momentum. A subdued development pipeline and consistent demand for space has substantially improved office operations in West Palm Beach over the past several years. The market’s vacancy rate has dropped from a cycle high of 20.7 percent in 2010 to under 14.0 percent this year, the most substantive recovery in the region. Availability will decline sharply again in 2019 despite a year-over-year rise in deliveries, as the metro’s largest completions are already fully leased. A similar expansion to the construction pipeline in Fort Lauderdale will hold vacancy flat this year but not impede rent growth. Monthly rates are appreciating at a rapid clip here as biotech and business development companies like Ultimate Software absorb more space.

Fewer arrivals pave way for rent growth in Miami. In contrast to the rest of Southeast Florida, the development pipeline in Miami is contracting this year. Although deliveries will still surpass 1 million square feet, ongoing leasing by healthcare companies, coworking enterprises and business services firms sustains demand. Availability will dip this year following a supply-driven increase in 2018, with vacancy particularly tight in Miami City, West Miami and Medley/Hialeah. A strong interest in occupying office space in these and other submarkets bodes well for rent growth this year, even though asking rates are already some of the highest in the state of Florida.

Investment Trends

Miami

- Greater interest from institutional investors translated into several recent high-caliber trades in Downtown Miami and nearby Brickell. Initial returns for these assets were in the mid-4 percent zone.
- Trade volume improved year over year in Kendall as multiple Class B and C assets changed hands for under $10 million with cap rates in the high-6 to high-7 percent range, above the high-5 percent metro average.

Fort Lauderdale

- Private investors have been more active than institutions so far this year as regionally low entry costs attracted parties from outside the market. Sales activity rose notably in Pompano Beach as buyers pursued Class B assets with mid-6 to mid-7 percent initial yields.
- Medical office properties acquired in recent months provided above-market initial returns. Several Class B and C assets in the city of Fort Lauderdale were exchanged with cap rates up to mid-8 percent.

West Palm Beach

- West Palm Beach investors focus on business hubs in Boca Raton, Delray Beach and other areas to obtain properties with high-credit tenants as the metro lacks a prominent central business district.
- Buyers targeting regionally high yields have pursued opportunities in North Palm Beach. Post 1980-built, sub-30,000-square-foot assets have traded recently with cap rates in the 7 to 8 percent zone.

1Q19 – 12-Month Trend

EMPLOYMENT

2.2% increase in total employment Y-O-Y

- Employment growth expanded year over year in March with the creation of 25,700 new jobs, 7,600 more positions than were added to the market during the 12-month period ended in March 2018.
- Hiring over the past four quarters was led by the professional and businesses services sector as about 8,600 personnel joined payrolls. In that same span, the construction sector grew at the fastest pace, 6.7 percent, between March 2018 and March 2019.

CONSTRUCTION

1.6 million square feet completed Y-O-Y

- The development pipeline approximately doubled compared with a year ago as an additional 863,000 square feet was delivered over the 12-month period ended in March.
- Construction activity was focused in Downtown Miami and nearby Coral Gables as well as farther north in Aventura. Large-scale completions in these submarkets include Miami Central towers Two and Three as well as the Ofizzina building.

VACANCY

40 basis point decrease in vacancy Y-O-Y

- The smallest quarterly delivery total in three years contributed to a decline in the metro's vacancy rate to 12.1 percent in March, the lowest value for this time of year since 2007.
- Leasing activity by distribution-related firms near Mimi-Opa Locka Executive Airport has supported a 820-basis-point decline in the Miami Lakes vacancy rate to 15.1 percent. Availability is lowest, at 2.9 percent, in West Miami.

RENTS

2.3% increase in the average asking rent Y-O-Y

- The average asking rent ended the first quarter at $34.94 per square foot, up 2.3 percent from a year ago. Monthly rates advanced the most, by 7.9 percent, in the Brickell submarket. The waterfront office district just south of downtown commands the metro's highest rents.
- Oceanfront submarkets reported above-market rent growth for the past four quarters. Asking rates appreciated by 3.5 and 4.0 percent in Coconut Grove and the Biscayne Corridor.

Sales Trends

Healthy Office Market, Strong Demographics
Encourage Investment and Bolster Sales Prices

- The Miami metro has demonstrated improved sales price appreciation since 2017, with the average price per square foot increasing 7.3 percent to $330 year over year in March.
- While initial returns have remained stable over the past three years, price growth contributed to a 10-basis-point dip in the market average cap rate into the high-5 percent zone in the first quarter.

Sales Trends

Outlook: As companies continue to expand their footprints in Miami, contributing to population and income growth, investors from the nation's primary gateway markets will look more toward the metro. Lower entry costs and favorable yield arbitrage are also major draws.

Capital Markets

- Monetary policy in transition. Despite the Fed raising its benchmark short-term rate three times in seven months and signaling another rise before the end of the year, long-term rates have remained stable. The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury bond remained in the low- to mid-2 percent range throughout the second quarter of 2017. The Federal Reserve wants to normalize monetary policy and, in addition to rate hikes, will start paring its balance sheet. While short- and long-term rates do not always move in tandem, both actions by the Fed have the potential to lift long-term rates.
- Sound economy a balancing act for Fed. With unemployment at the lowest level since 2007 at 4.3 percent, the Federal Reserve will remain vigilant regarding the possible rapid increase in inflation if wage growth takes off. Additionally, business confidence sits close to its all-time high. Businesses finally have the confidence to expand their footprint after years of tepid growth following the Great Recession. Office properties stand to gain significantly from this expansion with increased hiring adding to occupancy, plus expanding economic growth. The Fed, however, must now balance economic growth and job creation against wage growth and inflationary pressures.
- Underwriting discipline persists; ample debt capital remains. Overall, leverage on acquisition loans has continued to reflect disciplined underwriting, with LTVs typically ranging from 60 percent to 75 percent for most office properties. At the end of 2016, the combination of higher rates, conservative lender underwriting and fiscal policy uncertainty encouraged some investor caution that slowed deal flow, a trend that has extended into 2017. A potential easing of regulations on financial institutions, though, could liberate additional lending capacity and higher interest rates may also encourage additional lenders to participate.
